P R E F A C E

In the course of describing the location of triangulation, traverse and magnetic stations, and bench marks throughout the state, the Massachusetts Geodetic Survey often uses reference to smaller villages, districts or centers of habitation within the official cities and towns of the Commonwealth. While the names of these localities are in constant use, they are often not well known outside the communities themselves and are frequently confusing because of name similarities encountered.

Accordingly, the Survey has established, basically for its own use, -a Locality Finding List- presenting generally useful place-data not readily available elsewhere.

The list progresses logically from the background of counties, cities and towns, through mapped villages to localities of more indeterminate boundary. For the designation of these localities, such places as post offices, railroad stations and sometimes airports have been freely used as the most convenient and definite basis of identification.

Unusual or doubtful name combinations have been clarified by special listings; but self-evident name connections are eliminated whenever they appear unnecessary, particularly in the use of East, West, North, South and Center when used merely as descriptive adjectives.

This Finding List has been set forth in this form in the belief that it will be as generally helpful to other agencies as it has been to this Survey. Its purpose is simply to produce a compact serviceable instrument for reference use. It is not set forth as an authority on spelling, or to settle questions of preferential names for the same locality. No doubt there will prove to be errors, particularly of omission and although the sources of information are in the main reliable, it is hoped they will not be too numerous.
